Known the world over as "America's Tropical Wonderland," where rare and exotic plants have been gathered from the ends of the earth to form a paradise of beauty and a Mecca for a quarter million visitors during a year.

Azaleas, Camellia Japonicas, and Gardenias, all bloom in profusion along the Cypress block paths, forming a colorful display among exotic foliage on the banks of the lagoons and canals.

Modern electric boats cruise in restful quiet along lagoons banked with brilliant flowers, overhanging palms and the fantastic leaves of jungle creepers.
